Redemption of Murray comes at Sony

Adam Schupak

Golfweek | USA TODAY Network

HONOLULU – On the first hole of a three-man playoff at the Sony Open in Hawaii, Grayson Murray faced a 40-foot birdie putt. Both of his competitors – Byeong Hun (Ben) An and Keegan Bradley – were well inside him, with An 4 feet from possibly his first win. Murray figured one if not both of them would make their birdie putts, so he knew he had to give his putt a chance. Did he ever.

His left-to-right breaking putt straightened out as it neared the hole and disappeared, center cut. When neither An nor Bradley converted their birdie putts, Murray was a champion again on the PGA Tour for the first time in 6 years, 5 months and 22 days.

“I kept telling Jay, (my caddie), we’re hitting good putts, we’re hitting them right where we want, and we’re going to have one drop today, and it’s going to be big, he recalled, and it might be for the win.”

Murray closed in 3-under 67 on Sunday at Waialae Country Club, including a clutch birdie at 18 in regulation to force his way into the playoff with a 72-hole total of 17-under 263.

That he returned to the winner’s circle in Hawaii of all places is fitting as it was the site of one of his lowest points. Three years ago, during this tournament, Murray was involved in an incident at a hotel bar where many of the players stayed, and the PGA Tour placed him on probation.

“Why was I drunk?” he posted on social media. “Because I’m an alcoholic that hates everything to do with the PGA Tour life and that’s my scapegoat.”

Nevertheless, Murray showed great promise on the course, winning the 2017 Barbasol Championship despite drinking during tournament week and admitting on Sunday that he played three days hungover when he won.

“Best thing and worst thing that ever happened to me was winning my rookie year,” he said.

“I think the alcohol brought a side out of me that wasn’t me. It was kind of the monster in me in a way.”

His early success proved to be short-lived. He struggled to make cuts and conceded he was jealous of the players he grew up competing against, many of whom had garnered greater success than him. Along the way, Murray had a Twitter spat with a fellow player, suffered a scooter accident in 2022 in Bermuda, and threatened to quit on multiple occasions. Murray also dealt with anxiety and depression. He said there were days he didn’t want to get out of bed.

“I just thought I was a failure,” he said.

Murray eventually entered rehab and said he’s been sober for eight months. He regained exempt status on the PGA Tour this season after winning twice on the Korn Ferry Tour and set out to treat his return to the big leagues as a new beginning.

“I said, ‘Hey, look, I have an opportunity here,’” Murray recounted. “Probably haven’t reached my prime yet. I can get on a good solid 10-year run, and that’s what I plan on doing.”

With his fiancée, Christiana by his side all week, Murray shot 64 in the third round to share the 54-hole lead with Bradley. Before the final round, Josh Gregory, his short-game coach, tried to downplay the task at hand, saying playing well might do something for his golf career but it wouldn’t change his life. “I just used that mentality,” Murray said.

He stayed patient, making eight pars to start the final round before birdies at Nos. 9 and 10. With the final group on the 14th hole, there were five players tied for the lead at 16 under. At 18, Murray flighted a wedge from 78 yards inside 3 feet to match Bradley’s 67 and tied An (64), who two-putted for birdie ahead of him to get to 17 under.

The tee shot at the dogleg-left 18th, the first playoff hole, doesn’t set up well for Murray, a fader, especially with the wind off the left. He tugged it off the tee in the playoff, clipping a palm tree and had no choice but to lay up. He wedged his third 40 feet left of the hole. During regulation, his caddie, Jay Green, watched another competitor, Sam Stevens, leave a putt on the same line short. Murray made sure he didn’t make the same mistake and broke into lusty fist pumps when he canned the putt.

“I love making big-time putts in big-time moments,” he said. “I’m never going to back down from a celebration.”

Bradley had made a clutch 20-foot birdie putt at 15 to assume the lead but played the par-5 18th in par twice.

“This is one of the hardest losses I’ve ever had in my career, if not the hardest,” said Bradley, who missed to the left on his 17-foot birdie putt to extend the playoff. “I played good enough to win. But sometimes it’s just not quite good enough, and that was one of these weeks.”

An shoved his 4-foot putt, which would have forced another hole with Murray, to the right, a shocking finish to the high drama.

“It hurts, but what are you going to do,” An said.

Murray is proud that he’s winning the battle with his demons and his watery eyes were one indication of how rewarding it was to see his hard work paying off.

“It’s not easy, you know. I want to give up a lot of times, give up on myself, give up on the game of golf, give up on life at times,” he said. “Just persevere, and when you get tired of fighting let someone else fight for you.”

That final line is a famous quote of ESPN personality Stuart Scott, who died of cancer in 2015. Murray said those words had lifted him up and helped him write this next chapter of his redemption story.

“My story is not finished,” Murray said. “I think it’s just beginning. I hope I can inspire a lot of people going forward that have their own issues.”

Saban’s daughter reflects on his bittersweet move

Victoria Hernandez

USA TODAY

Nick Saban’s retirement shook the college football world, and his daughter said the coach’s decision to step down as the head coach of Alabama football is “bittersweet.”

Kristen Saban Setas had some free time on Sunday and invited fans to an Ask Me Anything on her Instagram page. She answered a couple of dozen questions via Instagram stories about the process behind her father’s big announcement, her favorite memories at Bryant-Denny Stadium and more.

Saban announced his retirement on Wednesday evening. Setas, who has a brother named Nicholas, gave fans an insight into what her father’s thought process was like that day. She said that she found out he officially made the decision “on my flight to Florida.”

“That morning, my mom let me know that it was being heavily considered but wasn’t 100% sure,” she said. “I don’t think my dad was completely set on it until he gave himself a few hours to make a decision and he made it.”

Setas also said that her mother and Nick’s wife, Terry, does not have dementia as has been rumored. Saban said earlier that neither he nor Terry were suffering from an illness that led to his decision to leave coaching.

“I don’t know where this even came from, but it’s absurd,” Setas said. “Ev-everyone in the family is in good health. Don’t believe everything you read.”

Saban left after more than 50 years coaching football and leading Alabama to six national championships. This season the Crimson Tide went 12-2, losing to Texas in their second game of the season and dealing with injuries throughout their campaign. Alabama made it to the College Football Playoff, where they lost to eventual champion Michigan in the semifinals at the Rose Bowl.

“I had a weird sense of relief that we were not moving forward,” Setas said. “The last season was one I will never forget for all the adversity the team faced and conquered, but like all others it had its hardships. I think a lot of us were starting to feel rundown and stressed, at least I know I was feeling that way. I kind of felt an end coming but didn’t know when. All I know is I felt exhausted.”

The Saban family moved to Tuscaloosa when Saban was named head coach of Alabama’s football team in 2007. Setas, who attended the university as a student, said that she and her family are not planning on moving, noting that her son is in school and that Alabama is “home.” She also said that she hasn’t met new Crimson Tide coach Kalen DeBoer and his family but offered to “have a girl chat about all things Bama” with his two daughters.

She said that she’s “almost certain” Saban will write another book, and the family is looking forward to quality time together.

“For my whole life I’ve shared him with the world,” she said. “Now, I can finally just have him be ‘Dad.’”

Setas acknowledged she will have to do some “soul searching” now that her life won’t revolve around college football. When asked about what she’s going to miss about Saban’s coaching, Setas said, “Literally everything.”

“The fast-paced lifestyle, the ups and downs of games, the energy from fans, the adrenaline of game day, seeing records and history being made, seeing him do the thing he loved the most,” she said. “Everything.”
