AUTO RACING

SPEED FREAKS

Q: Where do you rank Childress Racing's 1-2 Texas finish among this year's surprises?

GODSPEAK (Godwin Kelly): It busted into my top-5. Didn't see that coming. It's going to be difficult to unseat the Daytona 500 finish as my top pick.
KEN'S CALL (Ken Willis): It's more surprising than Cole Custer's win at Kentucky, and maybe even more surprising than Kyle Busch's ongoing absence from a Cup Series victory lane. But let's surely call it a pleasant surprise.

Q: Is Tyler Reddick next to break through?

GODSPEAK: If he had just a little more tread on his tires, we'd be talking about a second rookie win this season. He will win a race this season, and I sure hope he makes the playoffs.
KEN'S CALL: He was eighth and 10th at Indy and Kentucky before Sunday's runner-up finish, so this was no complete shock and, yes, he's a definite candidate for some checkers.

Godwin's picks for Kansas

Winner: Denny Hamlin
 Rest of top 5: Brad Keselowski, Chase Elliott, Kyle Busch, Kevin Harvick
 First one out: Kurt Busch
 Dark horse: Matt DiBenedetto

Ken Willis' top 10 driver rankings

1. Kevin Harvick: Fifth or better in six straight
2. Aric Almirola: A top-10 machine since mid-June
3. Brad Keselowski: Smells champagne but can't taste it
4. Denny Hamlin: Oops ... just when he was coming around
5. Ryan Blaney: Back on the rails of decency
6. Chase Elliott: All-Star win is current outlier
7. Kurt Busch: Always among leaders, rarely leading
8. Kyle Busch: Can still win prelims
9. Martin Truex Jr.: Can't keep all the pieces together
10. Tyler Reddick: Last 3: 8, 10, 2

Through the gears

FIRST GEAR: The NASCAR Cup Series has been a blur lately. The boys raced at Kentucky, did the All-Star deal at Bristol, then capped off the eight-day week with a brutally hot, 500-mile afternoon race at Texas Motor Speedway. There were surprises all around. Rookie Cole Custer from the Stewart-Haas Racing shop made a daring high-line pass around a group of veteran drivers to win at Kentucky. Three days later, NASCAR's "Most Popular Driver," Chase Elliott, captured the All-Star Race, which was held at Bristol for the first time. This mad rush was capped with an unexpected 1-2 finish by the Richard Childress Racing camp, its first since 2011. Austin Dillon put the brakes on an 88-race losing streak for the No. 3 Chevrolet and was followed across the line by rookie teammate Tyler Reddick. "You stay patient," Dillon said of his long winless streak. "You have faith. I have faith. Faith can really take you a long way. I'm not saying there wasn't a lot of ups and downs during that time period. You go through peaks and valleys."

SECOND GEAR: Austin Cindric captured the Xfinity Series race at Texas. So what's the big deal about that?

Well, Kyle Busch was the first driver to take the checkered flag but under NASCAR's no-nonsense rules, his car failed post-race inspection and he was disqualified. On the race report Busch finished last. He bounced back and won the Texas truck series race, then finished fourth in the Cup race.

THIRD GEAR: This super-hyped Cup Series rookie class is living up to the billing. Custer passed a glob of cars on a late restart to win a shootout finish at Kentucky and qualify for the playoffs. Eight days later Reddick finished second at Texas and is within 14 points of making the playoffs on points. Christopher Bell is 21st in points. John Hunter Nemechek rounds out the class.

FOURTH GEAR: So three races in eight days as NASCAR plays catch-up with its Cup schedule and finally syncs with the original schedule Aug. 29 at Daytona. Just when you think things might be going back to normal, the Cup race this week at Kansas will be staged Thursday night, followed by two truck series races and an Xfinity outing on Friday and Saturday. In other words, pay close attention to the schedule.
