The State (Columbia)

Jacks, veteran coach reach Frisco at last

Matt Zimmer
Sioux Falls Argus Leader
USA TODAY Network

BROOKINGS, S.D. – When John Stiegelmeier took over as the football coach at his alma mater, in 1997, he was 40, South Dakota State was a slightly-above average NCAA Division II program, and the Jackrabbits played in rickety old Coughlin-Alumni Stadium.

A quarter of a century later, “Stig” and his crew are Texas-bound, as the Jackrabbits punched their ticket to the Division I Football Championship Sub-division national championship game with a 33-3 rout of Delaware last weekend at Dana J. Dykhouse Stadium.

They’ll face Sam Houston State on Sunday (2 p.m. ET, ABC) in Frisco.

Stiegelmeier coached seven seasons in D-II and never made the playoffs. Only twice did his North Central Conference teams win more than six games.

But there he was, on a Saturday in the middle of May, getting doused with Powerade live on ESPN while Alabama’s “If You’re Gonna Play in Texas” blared over the loudspeakers, having finally directed his team to a destination that feels at once like it’s been forever in coming and like it happened faster than anyone might have expected.

“I don’t think I thought back in 1977 that the student coach that had a desk in my office when I was defensive coordinator would lead the Jacks 44 years later to the national championship game,” said Mike Daly, who was the head coach at State prior to Stiegelmeier and groomed him to serve as his defensive coordinator and later his replacement. “A moment like this makes me feel like a proud grandpa. I couldn’t be more proud of the coach and man he has become. One of the great coaches and

The FCS – known as Division I-AA when the Jacks first made the move – has been far kinder to them than a century of Division II football ever was. SDSU is appearing in the playoffs for the ninth straight season, they’ve won three conference titles, sent a handful of players on to the NFL, played admirably against major conference foes (including beating Kansas) and advanced deep into the playoffs on multiple occasions.

But the semifinals have been where the best Jackrabbit teams have seen their seasons die.

That hasn’t been for a lack of talent, coaching or effort.

Starting around the middle of the previous decade, SDSU began to move into the upper echelon of the country. Zach Zenner gave the Jacks their first D-I superstar, and when Austin Sumner, Jake Wieneke and others joined him, playing for Frisco seemed realistic.

The next wave of stars accompanied the arrival of Dana J. Dykhouse Stadium, the $65 million, 19,340-seat facility that debuted in 2015 and established the Jacks as fully-engaged high-rollers in the FCS.

Wieneke, Dallas Goedert, Taryn Christion, Christian Rozeboom, Jordan Brown, Cade Johnson – it almost seems unfair that those men came through Brookings without getting this opportunity, not to mention D-II stars like Doug Miller, Josh Ranek, Adam Timmerman and Adam Vinatieri, among others.

“When we went (Division I) in 2004, I knew it and our players knew it, that it was a chance to change the face of South Dakota State football,” said Stiegelmeier, who improved to 174-106 with Saturday’s win. “I would credit those first four classes that went through the reclassification. This is a really special moment for me. Having been here as long as I have, for every person who’s wore a Jackrabbit uniform. ... I love our players. Thank God for our players. It means a lot.”

When you share not just a classification but a conference with North Dakota State, arguably the most dominant dynasty in college football history with eight national titles in the last nine years, having a great team is quite often not enough. Yes, the Jacks have beaten NDSU before, like they did this year. But never did they win enough of the other games, too. Never did they get home-field advantage throughout the playoffs. Never did they earn the top seed.

This year, after dropping a game they should’ve won in Week 2 at North Dakota, the Jacks recognized their margin for error had dissolved. They’re 7-0 since. After Southern Illinois gave them a scare two weeks ago, the Jacks looked absolutely determined to make sure they didn’t squander this opportunity.

Stiegelmeier, a 64-year-old, Selby, South Dakota, native who did not play college football, has something of a patriarchal role over the program. He lets his assistant coaches do much of the recruiting, game-planning and play-calling, but he remains the face of Jackrabbit football, if not its heartbeat. He’s stayed on the job for this long specifically because one goal remained unchecked on his career resume – a national championship.

It’s not a coincidence that the year the formula finally came together was in a pandemic-delayed spring season, as Stiegelmeier’s Jacks went the entire spring without a single positive test for COVID-19, a commendable team effort that started largely with his leadership. When they lost to UND, he told his team that the script for the rest of their season had been written. It was up to them to execute it.

“SDSU has been lucky to have John as coach all these years,” said Daly, who emphasized what Stiegelmeier has added to those in the program as a friend and confidant. “He has an uncanny ability of evaluating and recruiting great players who are also great people and great students. He also has had the ability to attract great assistant coaches who treat people the same way.”

There’s one more left. Make no mistake, getting to Frisco is a big deal. It’s a step the Jacks had not previously taken, a glaring omission from their otherwise strong resume as an FCS heavyweight.

But there’s room in the Dykhouse Center trophy case for a national championship trophy, and while Stiegelmeier’s legacy as the father of Division I football at SDSU is secure, that trophy is all that’s missing from it.

“When you say you want to win a national championship you need to get to Frisco,” he said. “So to me (this is) a step. What I hope, what I expect, and what I’m going to demand, is that we’re not giddy about getting there, but excited about the opportunity to win a national championship.”

FCS finalist Sam Houston State not same ol’ Bearkats

Matt Zimmer

Sioux Falls Argus Leader | USA TODAY Network

SIoux FALLS, S.D. – If you follow NCAA Division I’s Football Championship Subdivision closely, you’re familiar with Sam Houston State. You know the orange helmets, the Bearkats with a “K” nickname, charismatic head coach K.C. Keeler.

You probably also know the ‘Kats are a regular in the playoffs, a perennial power in the Southland Conference, but a team that hasn’t measured up once they got deep in the tournament.

To wit:

- In 2014, Keeler’s first year at the helm, SHSU lost 35-3 to North Dakota State in the semifinals.

- In 2015, it lost to Jacksonville State 62-10 in the semifinals.

- In 2016, the Bearkats were 12-0 heading into a quarterfinal matchup with James Madison. The Dukes eked out a 62-7 win that day.

- In 2017, SHSU was 12-1 when it visited the Fargodome in the semifinals. Bison 55, Bearkats 13.

To be fair, those failures came after Sam Houston State went to national championship games (losing both) in 2011 and 2012. But after the ‘Kats missed the playoffs in 2018 and 2019 it was fair to wonder if their time as an FCS heavyweight had passed, and when they won the Southland again this year, it was tempting to think these were the same old Bearkats. Dominant in the regular season, sure to be exposed against better competition in the playoffs.

So much for that.

The ‘Kats (9-0) took down the defending national champ and the top-ranked team in the country in back-to-back weeks to punch their ticket to Frisco, Texas, for Sunday’s championship game. Those two opponents – North Dakota State and James Madison – are widely regarded as the elite programs in the FCS. Whatever doubts or criticisms one might have had on Sam Houston State don’t hold up anymore.

And the way the Bearkats look at it, it’s two down, one to go.

“In my opinion, for us to win the national championship we’re gonna have to have beat the three best teams in the country back to back to back,” Keeler said. “We’ve beaten two of them. Now can we beat the third one?”

Jacks: ‘We won’t overlook them’

The South Dakota State Jackrabbits know that they can and know how well they’ll have to play to prevent it from happening.

“I’ll say this – we won’t overlook them,” said Jacks defensive tackle Xavier Ward. “Any team can beat any team. It just takes a will and a drive.”

Well, that and really good players and coaches, and the Bearkats have those. Keeler already owns a national championship ring, from when he took Delaware (the team SDSU just beat to get to Frisco) to the title in 2003. And he’s assembled a roster that outscored its regular-season opponents by an average score of 45-17, produced six wins against ranked opponents and has shown the ability to excel in all three phases of the game.

“There are no weaknesses,” said Jacks coach John Stiegelmeier. “There’s a lot of strengths. Their players are very good. Their quarterback is excellent, their skill on offense is excellent, their lines are very good. Where they have improved the most from the Sam Houstons I’ve watched in the past, I think, has been their defense and especially their defensive line.”

Defensive dominance, offensive firepower carry SHSU football

Indeed, the “Soft Houston State” jokes are a thing of the past. SHSU has held opponents to 78.9 rushing yards per game and a mere 2.2 yards per carry. That’s in part because in college, sacks are counted as negative rushing yards, and the Bearkats have recorded a whopping 37 sacks in nine games.

On offense, the Bearkats have a prolific passing game behind quarterback Eric Schmid (2,599 yards and 17 TDs passing) and big-play receivers Jequez Ezzard and Ife Adeyi, who both average more than 20 yards per catch, but they can run it, too, with Ramon Jefferson (656 yards) and the shifty Schmid (382 yards, eight TDs).

Still, with as much respect as the Jacks have for Sam Houston State’s personnel, it’s the Bearkats’ resilience that impresses them most.

After holding off a tough, 10th-ranked Monmouth squad 21-15 in the first round, the Bearkats took a 17-2 lead on North Dakota State, only to allow a 94-yard kickoff return score and 76-yard punt return TD in the space of two minutes to cough up the lead. Knowing the Bison’s history, virtually everyone watching assumed the ‘Kats had blown it and NDSU would coast to victory, but SHSU rallied with a nine-play, 72-yard drive late in the fourth quarter to retake the lead, then made a defensive stand in the final seconds to hold on for the 24-20 win.

A week later, the ‘Kats found themselves trailing James Madison 24-3 at halftime, only to outscore the Dukes 28-3 in the third quarter on their way to the 38-35 win.

“They can score fast and they can change games really quickly,” said Jacks linebacker Logan Backhaus. “Last week when they were down 24-3 I’m sure a lot of people wrote them off. They scored I think 21 points in two minutes.

“One thing we’ve focused on is keeping on the gas, keep moving forward and don’t let up until the game is over. That’s going to be very important this week.”
