Illinois track gets Cup date

Kelly Crandall

RACER magazine | USA TODAY Network

NASCAR senior vice president of strategy and innovation Ben Kennedy believes the collaboration between industry stakeholders and fan feedback led to the creation of "what we think is ultimately the best Cup Series schedule that we've had so far."

On Wednesday, NASCAR rolled out the 2022 schedule, which includes two new steps. The first will be the Clash exhibition race to be run on a temporary short track built inside Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, and then a visit to Illinois and World Wide Technology Raceway. The full schedule features 39 race events.

While WWTR is the only new points-paying race, there are notable highlights. NASCAR returns to competition on Easter weekend for the first time since 1989. The event will be the second on the dirt at Bristol Motor Speedway and in prime time.

"We learned that it's important for us to make sure that dirt event is into the evening or under the lights, and we were able to secure that prime-time window on Fox," Kennedy says. "You think of all the other sports leagues with NFL on Thanksgiving, NBA on Christmas. This was our opportunity to run on Easter Sunday and drive a lot of momentum for fans who are watching at home through Fox's season and NBC's season, from start to finish."

The inaugural Bristol dirt race this year was rained out and pushed to Monday. It was well-received, but there were lessons learned with tire wear and visibility issues. Moving the race to prime time should keep the surface in better racing condition.

Pocono was the only track to lose a race. For the first time since the early 1980s, it will not host two dates.

A significant change is that teams will have only one off weekend next year. That will be after the June 12 race on the Sonoma road course. There have routinely been two weeks off during the Cup season for Easter and then one in summer. This year added one more because, besides Easter, NASCAR went on a two-week summer break in August to allow for the Olympics.

"It's something that we're certainly looking at, and know it was nice to have the two-week off week with the Olympic break, and I think it was a natural break for our season this year," says Kennedy. "What's sad is if you look at our schedule overall, starting on Presidents Day weekend as we traditionally have with the Daytona 500 and ending our season at Phoenix with the championship race, by the time you lay out the entire schedule, really ultimately, it leads to only one off week if we're running on Sundays and weekends."

California's Auto Club Speedway is back on the schedule after being shuttered during the COVID-19 pandemic. There are six road course races, five of which will be during the regular season.

NASCAR also shuffled dates around late in the year, such as Watkins Glen being before the regular-season finale, and Texas and Kansas wrapping post-season dates. Homestead is also back in the playoffs.
