US OPEN 5 THINGS WE LEARNED FROM SUNDAY

Fitzpatrick's work ethic pays off

David Dusek

Golfweek | USA TODAY Network

BROOKLINE, Mass. – On a chilly, overcast New England day, the lead at the 122nd U.S. Open went back and forth throughout the afternoon.

Matt Fitzpatrick, Will Zalatoris and Scottie Scheffler all reached 6 under during their rounds at The Country Club on Sunday, but only one of them, the Englishman who won the 2013 U.S. Amateur at this course, was able to finish there.

Fitzpatrick becomes the third golfer to win a U.S. Amateur and U.S. Open on the same course, joining Jack Nicklaus at Pebble Beach and Juli Inkster at Prairie Dunes.

Here are five things we learned on Sunday at The Country Club.

Fitzpatrick did it the hard way

Last year, Jon Rahm, one of the most powerful players in golf, won the U.S. Open at Torrey Pines. The year before that, it was Bryson DeChambeau, one of the biggest hitters on the PGA Tour (or LIV Series starting in a few weeks). The year before that, Gary Woodland, another power player, won the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach.

Matt Fitzpatrick has always been an outstanding putter and possessed a solid short game but recently has gotten longer off the tee.

“(My coach and biomechanist Sasho Mackenzie) gave me this speed stick called The Stack. I’ve been doing that religiously week in and week out,” Fitzpatrick said Sunday evening. “It’s like going to the gym basically. It’s like a training program. I’ll be honest, it’s worked wonders.”

“I feel like maybe three years ago if I was in this position, four years ago, and I was playing with Will in the final group, I’d be concerned that I’m going to be 15, 20 behind him. And I felt comfortable all day that I was going to be past him, which to me gives me confidence obviously going into the next shot knowing that you’ve got less club.”

During the 2018-19 PGA Tour season, Fitzpatrick ranked 151st in driving distance on Tour (287.9 yards per drive), but this season he is up to 298 yards. That’s still 108th, but he ranks 40th in driving accuracy, so while he’s 11 yards longer, he still hits about 65% of the fairways.

On demanding golf courses like Southern Hills last month during the PGA Championship and this past week at The Country Club, which featured thick rough and fescue along the fairways, he ranked fifth in driving accuracy cy and was 36th in driving average at 309 yards.

With his victory in the U.S. Open, Englishman Matt Fitzpatrick has risen from No. 18 to No. 10 in the Official World Golf Ranking. PETER CASEY/USA TODAY SPORTS

Fitzpatrick is also legendary on tour for his work ethic. He has tracked every shot he has hit in competition and practice rounds for the last 12 years. If he continues to put in the work, more victories could be on the way.

Zalatoris has the pieces but hasn't put them together – yet

It was an odd day for Will Zalatoris because his putter made up for shortcomings off the tee and from the fairway. Typically, that’s not the case.

Zalatoris hit just seven of 14 fairways on Sunday, contributing to only 11 of 18 greens in regulation. He came into the U.S. Open ranked No. 1 in strokes gained off the tee. It’s tough to win a tournament, especially a major championship, if the foundation of your game doesn’t show up on Sunday.

“Considering where I drove it today, the fact I was even under par was obviously pretty nice,” Zalatoris said after signing for his 69. “I thought I made a lot of nice putts just to keep myself in it. Stealing one on 9, saving par on 13. I really felt great with the putter all week, and I hit a great putt on 18. It just happened to hang out there.”

This is now three close calls in major championships for Zalatoris. He was the runner-up at the 2021 Masters, lost in a playoff last month at the PGA Championship and tied for second at the U.S. Open. He has the prototypical modern game but must put the pieces together for four rounds if he wants to win. He’s 160th on the PGA Tour in strokes gained putting (0.227). If he can improve that and just become a tour-average putter, so his putting doesn’t cancel out his excellent iron play, he will have a long and successful career.

LIV Golf Series may not be good preparation for majors

At the start of the U.S. Open, there were 14 golfers who either played in the first LIV Series event in London or who announced they are going to play LIV Series events in the future, but none of them were in real contention by Sunday, and most of them missed the cut. Dustin Johnson, the 2016 U.S. Open winner, was the “Low LIV” at 2 over through 54 holes, and he finished Sunday at 4 over (T-24).

The PGA Tour has suspended its members who played in the LIV Series event in London, and golfers who play at the end of June in the next LIV Series event will also assuredly get indefinitely suspended by Jay Monahan, which will dramatically reduce playing opportunities in big events and against elite fields. Remember, LIV Series events are 54 holes, and there is no cut, so while they are lucrative, they may not be the best place for a golfer to get sharp before a major championship. The tough questions about being involved with Saudi Arabia will also surely be a distraction for LIV Series players in majors to come.

USGA really doesn't want a repeat of Shinnecock or Olympic

The Country Club proved to be an excellent venue for the United States Golf Association, and thanks to the wind and cool temperatures provided by Mother Nature, the course was as challenging to play as it was beautiful to see.

After Friday’s round, some golf lovers were concerned that 23 golfers were under par. For them, carnage and struggle are what the U.S. Open is all about, but it’s now clear that if the USGA is going to make a mistake when setting up courses, it will err on the conservative side. The fairways were narrow, the greens were fast and the rough was thick and lush, but the classic venue never felt tricked out or over the top.

On Wednesday, USGA CEO Mike Wahn talked with the media about anchor sites for USGA national championships, with Pinehurst, Oakmont and Pebble Beach already locked in for numerous events well into the 2040s.

The Country Club should be added to that list. Now.

No one should ever quit at a U.S. Open

It’s cliché, but you can win if you make the cut at the U.S. Open. And if you don’t win, you can still make a big move.

Hideki Matsuyama and Collin Morikawa did not win this week, but they shot the day’s low rounds on Sunday, a 65 and a 66, respectively, and raced up the leaderboard. Both started the day at 2 over par, six shots off the lead, and Matsuyama finished in solo fourth. Morikawa finished in a tie for fifth.

It would be easy to feel dejected on a difficult course like The Country Club, as we saw when Grayson Murray threw his putter and then snapped an iron over his knee, but moves can be made. It felt like the crowd in Boston was trying to will McIlroy up the leaderboard, and while he fell short of winning his second U.S. Open, he finished tied for fifth with Morikawa.

Next year, when you are filling out your U.S. Open pool, remember to pick grinders.

Umpires

and more a concern with rules.”

Until the technical kinks are smoothed out and stakeholders agree the time has come for automation, MLB will be wedded to its “blues.” That includes the Cuba-born Hernandez, who unsuccessfully sued MLB for discrimination, claiming he was denied crew chief and postseason assignments based on his race and not performance.

In 2023, Hernandez will mark his 30th anniversary as an MLB umpire

To the players? Mention his name in private and the reaction is largely ambivalent. “Just another guy,” says one pitcher. “If he’s working a game in Seattle and I’m here, I’m not thinking about him,” offers another.

A hitter opts to cut the conversation short rather than opine. “The game’s hard,” says one player, letting his forthcoming silence tell plenty about his feelings for Hernandez. “We’ll leave it at that.”

Factoring temporary call-ups and other substitutes, players will deal with roughly 100 umpers behind the plate. The greater enemy, always, is the grind, and within that the hope that over six months and up to 700 plate appearances, the good and bad calls will be a wash come October.

“If your team is winning and you’re playing well, it’s like all right, whatever, they’ll even out,” says Rockies third baseman Ryan McMahon. “And if it’s going bad, it’s like ah, you’re getting screwed all the time. But they do even out more than people realize.”

“In sports, human error needs to be a thing,” says Bassitt. “I think that’s what makes the sports in general beautiful is that there is human error, not just from the athletes but the people umpiring and officiating, managers calling the game, general managers ... everybody makes mistakes.

“We’re all human. We’re all trying to do our best. And I think that’s the beauty in it all.”
