MLB POWER RANKINGS

Yankees seek identity without Aaron Judge

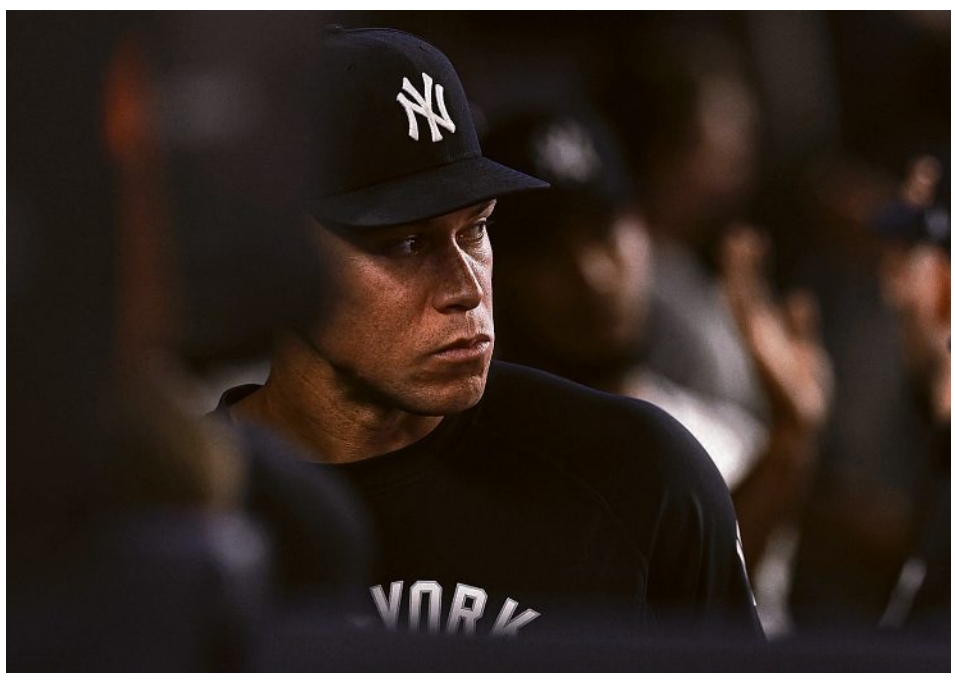

Gabe Lacques
USA TODAY

Aaron Judge is such an impactful player, the New York Yankees must figure out how to re-create themselves without him. And will they face an identity shift, or an identity crisis?

The Yankees lost three of their first five without him after the 6-foot-7 slugger and three-time MVP was lost for several weeks with a stress fracture of the first rib on his right side. Now, they face a key six-game road swing to Cleveland and Toronto that may answer the question everyone's wondering: How good are they without him?

The Yankees slid one spot to No. 5 in USA TODAY Sports' MLB power rankings, as an already muddled American League field gets even further complicated. That's not to say the Yankees will get pulled back to the pack. They will simply have to lean a little more on a starting rotation that ranks fourth in the AL with a 3.12 ERA and continue getting contributions from players like Jazz Chisholm, on a 19-game heater (four homers, .919 OPS).

And hope for positive updates on Judge.

Aaron Judge is chasing a third AL MVP award in a row. VINCENT CARCHIETTA/IMAGN IMAGES

A look at our updated rankings:

1. Atlanta Braves (–): Among the many reasons they call him Money Michael Harris II: He's 4-for-6 as a pinch-hitter, including a game-winner June 7.

2. Los Angeles Dodgers (–): Very fortunate a grisly collision didn't disrupt one of Max Muncy's finest seasons.

3. Milwaukee Brewers (+2): The Jake Bauers Experience rolls on: He has a pair of four-walk games, has .376 OBP, .891 OPS.

4. Tampa Bay Rays (-1): In a 3-10 funk, and their advantage over the Yankees has evaporated.

5. New York Yankees (-1): Spencer Jones, still seeking first homer, goes 3-for-3 in first game following recall.

6. Cleveland Guardians (–): Starters Gavin Williams, Parker Messick each building strong All-Star cases.

7. St. Louis Cardinals (+1): Riley O'Brien's 17 saves rank second in majors.

8. Philadelphia Phillies (+7): Cristopher Sanchez's amazing streak pushes Phillies rotation to fourth-most innings pitched in National League.

9. San Diego Padres (-2): Manny Machado sags to .169, .596 OPS. Perhaps "more analytics" is the answer?

10. Chicago White Sox (-1): Randal Grichuk didn't join team until May but ranks sixth with 19 RBIs.

11. Seattle Mariners (+1): Cal Raleigh's rehab assignment begins.

12. Chicago Cubs (-2): Rotation savior Ben Brown has 1.74 ERA, hasn't given up homer in majors-best 56 ⅔ innings.

13. Arizona Diamondbacks (-1): Corbin Carroll nearly on a 30-homer pace.

14. Pittsburgh Pirates (-3): Rotation stalwarts Mitch Keller, Braxton Ashcraft each give up six runs to No. 1 Atlanta.

15. Toronto Blue Jays (+3): Say what? Fill-in catcher Brandon Valenzuela second on the team with seven home runs.

16. Cincinnati Reds (-4): At least Matt McLain starting to awaken, pushing average over .200 and OPS from .614 to .671 in a week.

17. Texas Rangers (+3): For the sixth time since May 2, they've pulled within a game of .500. Perhaps this time's the charm.

18. Washington Nationals (-1): Marlins' sweep in DC, series win at Arizona continues crazy home (12-20) and road (21-13) fortunes.

19. Athletics (-3): Perhaps Gage Jump can save this rotation: He's given up just one run in 13⅓ innings in two starts away from Yolo County.

20. Baltimore Orioles (-1): 11-15 in AL East after losing rubber game at Toronto.

21. Houston Astros (+1): 11-8 since Jeremy Peña's return.

22. Miami Marlins (+2): Bullpen – with help from the dugout – leads MLB with .200 opponents' batting average.

23. New York Mets (–): Carson Benge becomes first Mets rookie to go 5-for-5 with a home run.

24. Minnesota Twins (-3): Royce Lewis mashed in St. Paul minor league reset; can he take that to Target Field?

25. Boston Red Sox (+1): Things getting dicey between team and recently demoted Brayan Bello.

26. Detroit Tigers (+1): Tarik Skubal back by the weekend? He looks dominant in first rehab start.

27. San Francisco Giants (+1): Hit a grand slam in every city on nine-game road trip.

28. Kansas City Royals (-3): Bobby Witt leaves game early (knee soreness).

29. Los Angeles Angels (–): Jack Kochanowicz hits injured list (elbow soreness).

30. Colorado Rockies (–): Outscored 28-12 in three-game Coors sweep by Brewers.

Serena Williams has simple reason she came out of retirement

Nancy Armour
USA TODAY

Serena Williams has a very simple reason for her return to competitive professional tennis.

"Why not? For lack of a better explanation," Williams said June 7 at the HSBC Championships, where she will play doubles with Canada's Victoria Mboko.

Ending months of speculation, Williams confirmed June 1 that she was coming out of retirement. The HSBC Championships, also known as Queen's Club, is her first tournament since the US Open in 2022. Williams has since said she also will play doubles at the Berlin Open this month.

Both Queen's Club and the Berlin Open are on grass, leading to speculation that Williams will play Wimbledon, a tournament she's won seven times. Williams didn't address that Sunday, saying she's putting "no pressure" on herself with the comeback.

"I've had enough pressure," the 23-time Grand Slam champion said. "For me right now, it's really just about … my kids getting to see me play. Olympia is a little bit older, Adira is very young, but it's also still moments like that.

"It's also just, an athlete is like the best thing that you can be in the highest place," she added. "Having an opportunity to still be able to possibly do that one last time is kind of cool and exciting."

Williams did say she isn't sure if she'll play singles. "I can't say yeah, I can't say no right now," she said. "I feel like I probably need to train a little bit more if I want to play singles and we'll see if I get there. And, if not, that's not my journey right now."

When Williams stepped away from tennis in 2022, it was partly because she and husband Alexis Ohanian wanted more children; Adira was born in August 2023. But Williams later said she'd also been plagued by joint pain after having Olympia in 2017.

Now 44, Williams lost 31 pounds after going on a GLP-1 drug, and she credited the medication with finally helping relieve the joint pain. She rejoined the International Tennis Integrity Agency's drug testing pool, a requirement to play again, last fall, signaling a comeback was a possibility. Williams was reinstated Feb. 22.

"The biggest thing I've missed is just the atmosphere. And the travel. I love traveling," she said. "I've (played tennis) literally my entire life. So when you stop something that you've done since, honestly, I can remember, I don't remember a start date, I think you kind of take it for granted. So now, there's different things I can try to experience in a different way that I've never been able to do before, and also do it with my family. Just have kind of a little bit of a different experience."

Williams is an exceptional doubles player – she has 14 Grand Slam titles in doubles – but her partner has almost always been big sister Venus Williams. With Venus playing sporadically now, Williams reached out to Mboko, a 19-year-old who is currently ranked No. 9 in the world.

Mboko won her first WTA title last year at the National Bank Open in August, then won her second title three months later at the Hong Kong Open.

"I was quite impressed with her game, I was impressed with her attitude," Williams recalled. "What I liked the most about her was the next time she played, she still kept winning. I was like, 'OK, I love that.' It reminded me a lot of myself. Sometimes you win one and then you have a little bit of a lull, which is normal and that's OK as well. But I loved how she had this drive."

Mboko grew up idolizing Williams, so to have Williams message her and ask if she wanted to play doubles together was "pretty cool."

The two have been hitting together the last couple of days, and Mboko said she's been impressed. Both with Williams as a player – "I personally think she's ready to go" – and a person.

"She's a really funny person. Spending time with her on court so far has been really a pleasure," Mboko said. "I feel like I can learn a lot from her but, at the same time, I think we can have a lot of fun."

Williams said she's feeling more comfortable the more she's on court. Asked if it's like riding a bike, she said yes, "up a hill. But I'm enjoying the ride."

Comebacks, especially by athletes as accomplished as Williams, are often judged by results. Wins and losses. Titles. But Williams isn't looking at it that way.

"I don't need to win. I've won more than most people have in their whole lives," she said. "So for me, that is not important to me. And it's important I keep reminding myself of that. Because I don't have anything to prove, I don't have anything to lose. Everything here is just to gain."

STREAMING

'Every Year After' season finale has people talking

Erin Jensen
USA TODAY

Warning: this story contains spoilers from Season 1 of "Every Year After," now streaming on Prime Video.

After weathering such tempestuous waters at Barry's Bay, is smooth sailing in store?

"Every Year After," Prime Video's adaptation of Carley Fortune's beloved 2022 novel, "Every Summer After" (now streaming), depicts the slow-burning romance of teenage neighbors Percy Fraser (Sadie Soverall) and Sam Florek (Matt Cornett), its eventual demise and potential revival over eight episodes.

"It feels like their souls are kind of made of the same thing," Soverall, 24, tells USA TODAY.

"It feels like they're just constantly drawn back to each other, and their thoughts are always laced with each other."

Starting in 2011, Percy and Sam savor summers together in the quaint Canadian town. After years of friendship, things take a romantic turn. But when Sam is overwhelmed with his college workload, he breaks up with Percy – and that's where things take a turn.

Matt Cornett is Sam and Sadie Soverall is Percy. PROVIDED BY CATE CAMERON/PRIME

What did Percy do? Is it forgivable in the actors' eyes?

Utterly heartbroken after the breakup, Percy sleeps with Sam's older brother, Charlie Florek (Michael Bradway). Soverall says she can understand the emotions that led to her character's decision.

"I think she was coming from a place of a lot of frustration and a lot of hurt and a lot of darkness," she says.

"And I think in that summer, Charlie was like the sun for her. He was there for her, he distracted her, and was really kind. … I think they were both feeling very lost, and they found a lot of solace in each other."

Percy and Charlie vowed to keep their indiscretion a secret.

But it comes to light when Percy returns to Barry's Bay, after being away for a decade, to attend the funeral of Sam and Charlie's mom, Sue Florek (Elisha Cuthbert).

Sam's feelings return after spending time with Percy, and he breaks up with his girlfriend, Taylor (Roan Curtis), whom he thought he would propose to. When he tries to rekindle things with Percy, she comes clean, and Sam is devastated by their dalliance.

The blow to Sam's relationship with his brother and future with Percy "immediately sends him into probably the darkest place he's ever been in his life," Cornett, 27, tells USA TODAY. "He has a full-on spiral, and it's something that is really hard for him to pull himself out of and to move past."

Do Percy and Sam end up together?

In the finale, Sam and Percy have sex after his mom's service, but he quickly tells her that they have no future.

"I do want so much to forgive you," Sam says, "but I don't think I can do this."

Attempting to reconnect might've been Sam's way of testing the waters, Cornett says.

"Being like, 'Let's see if I can even attempt to try and have something without thinking about it,' " he says. "And I think, in that moment, it is still too fresh for Sam, and I think that he realizes that."

Sam and Percy reunite later in the finale, after she has spruced up his mom's tavern bequeathed to Percy. "You came home," Percy says.

The two exchange wide smiles but no further words.

What does the finale mean? Will there be a Season 2?

From Cornett's perspective, Sam "comes back wanting to follow his heart."

"I think even though he's had this time to think about it and sit with the Percy and Charlie of it all, I think that he still is like, 'I can't get over this girl.' And this is my person," he says.

"And I want to show her that I'm willing to show up and entertain the idea of a conversation and hopefully be able to start over and explore the opportunity of being friends again."

Ultimately, Cornett says, the hope is that it may lead "to something more" between Percy and Sam.

Ahead of a second season, which has yet to be green-lighted, Cornett is hoping for a reconciliation between Percy and Sam – one that portrays a rebuilding of their friendship.

"I think that they both have hurt each other in different ways, and so I think that those conversations need to be had," he says, noting that they also need to discuss "starting from the beginning and starting somewhere fresh and new and creating a new version of who Sam and Percy are going to be."

"I think that they need to be friends again first," Cornett adds, "before they can even entertain the idea of fully, fully diving into loving each other again."

Soverall is on board for things heating up down the road.

"Oh, absolutely," she says. "I think they are meant for each other."

Public Notices

Public Notices are a permanent and independent record of government and court actions. These include state and local government meetings, rule making, available contracts, zoning changes, and many more, as required by law. In addition, parties to some court proceedings, such as foreclosures, probate, and estate actions are required to publish notices to ensure notification of affected parties, as well as the general public. These notices also alert business owners, large and small, to potential government contractual jobs, helping to ensure economic activity across a level playing field. Public notices have existed to ensure transparency in all levels of government since the founding of the United States.

State and local notices are published in Maine newspapers and are also recorded at mainenotices.com, where anyone can browse or search notices, and sign up to receive email alerts when relevant notices appear.
