Jun 25 2025

ability to come out of France, Essengue figures to be more of a developmental prospect, but his size, instincts at the rim and plus-defensive ability could make him a star if he bulks up.

13. Atlanta Hawks: Collin Murray-Boyles, South Carolina

• Sophomore, forward, 6-6½, 239, 20

• 2024-25 stats: 16.8 ppg, 8.3 rpg, 2.4 agp, 1.5 spg, 1.3 bpg, 58.6% FG, 26.5% 3PT, 70.7% FT

Although he's a bit undersized for a power forward, Murray-Boyles plays with intense effort and determination, which will very quickly please his NBA coaches. He also has plenty of strength to finish at the rim and was the SEC's No. 3 rebounder. Murray-Boyles had 35 points and seven rebounds against Arkansas late in the regular season and had 20 points and 12 rebounds in a loss to Arkansas in the SEC tournament.

14. San Antonio Spurs: Egor Demin, BYU

• Freshman, forward, 6-8 1/4, 199, 19

• 2024-25 stats: 10.3 ppg, 5.4 apg, 3.8 rpg, 1.2 spg, 41% FG, 27.1% 3PT, 67.5% FT

The Russian is a playmaker who can make quick decisions and facilitate for others. Demin is the size of a wing player but has guard-like skills. On defense, he uses his length to his advantage while forcing turnovers and being active in passing lanes. His shooting efficiency is a concern. Demin had difficulty with his offense as the season progressed. He had just three points with four turnovers, three assists and three rebounds in a Big 12 conference tournament victory against Iowa State and six points on 2-for-9 shooting (1-for-7 on 3s) with four assists and five turnovers in a conference tournament loss to Houston. In three NCAA Tournament games, he averaged 13.7 points, 5.7 assists and 4.7 rebounds and was 15-for-35 from the field.

15. Oklahoma City Thunder:

Asa Newell

• Freshman, forward, 6-9, 224, 19

• 2024-25 stats: 15.4 ppg, 6.9 rpg, 1.0 spg, 1.0 bpg, 54.3% FG, 29.2% 3PT, 74.8% FT

Based off of his size, Newell wouldn't appear to be as quick and fluid as he is, which should make him an instant threat in pick-and-roll situations. He was one of the lone bright spots for the Bulldogs in a loss against No. 1 Auburn with a team-high 20 points. His scoring dipped at the end of the regular season; however, he had 20 points and eight rebounds in a first-round NCAA Tournament loss to Gonzaga.

16. Memphis Grizzlies (from Orlando):

Joan Beringer, KK Cedevita (Adriatic League)

• Forward-center, 6-10, 230, 18

• 2024-25 stats: 5.0 ppg, 4.6 rpg, 1.4 bpg, 61.5% FG, 58.4% FT

Beringer has gained traction among NBA scouts and executives as a mobile big man who can run the pick-and-roll as a screener on offense and guard the pick-and-roll. He doesn't have a lot of experience but his potential, especially as a rim protector, has made him a firstround prospect. Another player who has improved throughout the season.

17. Minnesota Timberwolves: Jase Richardson, Michigan State

• Freshman, guard, 6-0 ½, 178, 19

• 2024-25 stats: 12.1 ppg, 3.3 rpg, 1.9 apg, 49.3% FG, 41.2% 3PT, 83.6% FT

Richardson improved as the season progressed and turned into the Spartans' steady hand with the basketball as a shooter (inside and out) and facilitator. He is an active defender with surprising bouts of athleticism. He also has a knack for collecting rebounds, big plays and poise under pressure. He had an up-and-down NCAA Tournament in four games – 5-for-11 shooting and 15 points against Bryant, 1-for-10 shooting against New Mexico, 20 points on 6for-8 shooting against Ole Miss, and 4for-13 shooting against Auburn.

18. Washington Wizards:

Oklahoma guard Jeremiah Fears goes to the basket against UConn on March 21. ZACHARY TAFT/IMAGN IMAGES

Thomas Sorber, Georgetown

• Freshman, forward-center, 6-9 1/4,

• 2024-25 stats: 14.5 ppg, 8.5 rpg, 2.4 apg, 2.0 spg, 53.2% FG, 72.4% FT

The standout freshman required surgery to repair a foot injury suffered Feb. 15 and missed the rest of the season. But Sorber is a stellar inside threat who's just as comfortable cutting to the basket on pick-and-rolls as he is backing down opponents. His rebounding and rim protection will make him an asset, as he continues to grow into his frame.

19. Brooklyn Nets:

Liam McNeeley, UConn

• Freshman, forward, 6-6 ¾, 215, 19 • 2024-25 stats: 14.5 ppg, 6.0 rpg, 2.3

apg, 38.1% FG, 31.7% 3PT, 86.6% FT What McNeeley may lack in fluid athleticism, he more than makes up for with a smooth, natural shot and knack for drawing fouls and getting to the freethrow line. He also has a quick release and plenty of range to suggest that he should get early minutes. He bounced back since suffering an ankle injury New Year's Day that had sidelined him for a few weeks. McNeeley struggled with his shot at times down the stretch. In a Big East tournament loss to Creighton, McNeeley had 13 points on 6-for-20 shooting (0-for-5 on 3-pointers), and in his final eight games before the NCAA Tournament, he shot 34.1% from the field and 28.2% on 3s. In two NCAA Tournament games, he was 8-for-29 from the field, including 3-of-16 on 3s.

20. Miami Heat: Nolan Traore,

Saint-Quentin (France) • Guard, 6-4, 175, 19

• 2024-25 stats: 12 ppg, 4.8 apg, 1.9 rpg, 40.9% FG, 31.4% 3PT, 72.8% FT

Traore is a point guard who can score and pass and has court awareness but also a propensity for bad turnovers. He is quick, can get to the rim and is comfortable taking his defender off the dribble. Needs to work on his shooting efficiency, especially on 3s. His brother, Armel, was on a two-way contract with the Los Angeles and South Bay Lakers before being waived in February.

21. Utah Jazz: Nique Clifford, Colorado State

• Fifth-year graduate season, guard,

• 2024-25 stats: 18.9 ppg, 9.6 rpg, 4.4 apg, 1.2 spg, 49.6% FG, 37.7% 3PT, 77.7%

Clifford is a versatile wing who does a lot of things - scoring, rebounding, passing and defending. He has a quick burst on drives to the basket and can finish with force or finesse. He logged big minutes for Colorado State and was excellent in the Rams' final six games before the NCAA Tournament, posting 25.3 points, 7.8 rebounds, 5.2 assists and 1.5 steals and shooting 60% from the field, including 54.8% on 3s. He had 36 points against Boise State at the end of the regular season and recorded two double-doubles in the Mountain West tournament. Clifford had 21 points, seven rebounds, six assists and two blocks in an NCAA Tournament second-round loss to Maryland.

22. Atlanta Hawks:

Cedric Coward, Washington State • Senior, guard, 6-5 ¼, 213, 21

• 2024-25 stats: 17.7 ppg, 7.0 rpg, 3.7 apg, 55.7% FG, 40% 3PT, 83.9% FT

Coward started his college career at Division III Willamette University, then transferred to Eastern Washington and then switched to Washington State. He played in just six games in 2024-25 with a shoulder injury ending his senior season in November. Coward has great size for a guard, is solid on catch-and-shoot 3s and has the ability to get to the rim.

23. New Orleans (from Indiana): Danny Wolf, Michigan

• Junior, forward-center, 6-10 ½, 252,

• 2024-25 stats: 13.2 ppg, 9.7 rpg, 3.6 apg, 1.4 bpg, 49.7% FG, 33.6% 3PT,

59.4% FT The Yale transfer turned into a firstround selection thanks to his fluid scoring and play-making portfolio in the package of a 7-foot stretch big. Wolf played point guard at times this season for the Wolverines just like he played center. His handles make him a threat as the initiator in pick-and-roll actions and his range should translate to the NBA. Wolf had 21 points and 14 rebounds against Maryland in the Big Ten tournament semifinals and shot 52.9% from the field as the Wolverines won the conference tourney. He had 20 points and six rebounds in an NCAA regional semi#### finals loss to Auburn. 24. Oklahoma City Thunder: Will Riley, Illinois

• Freshman, forward, 6-8 1/4, 186, 19 • 2024-25 stats: 12.6 ppg, 4.1 rpg, 2.2

apg, 43.2% FG, 32.6% 3PT, 72.4% FT Great size for a shooting guard who can make 3s and find open teammates. Like many, looks for offensive rebounds. His shot is a work in progress but the mechanics are there and he improved as a shooter and scorer as the season progressed. He shot 37-for-72 (51.4%) from the field and averaged 16.3 points in the Illini's final six games.

25. Orlando Magic:

Rasheer Fleming, Saint Joseph's

• Junior, forward, 6-8 ¼, 232, 20 • 2024-25 stats: 14.75 ppg, 8.5 rpg, 1.5 bpg, 1.4 spg, 1.3 apg, 53.1% FG, 39% 3PT, 74.3% FT

Fleming is a mobile forward who plays a physical game and has strong footwork to finesse his way around defenders. He likes to get easy buckets in transition, his 3-point percentage in nearly five attempts per game is encouraging and he is valuable in pick-androlls as the screener. Defensively, he deflects passes and can protect the rim. Fleming averaged 18.8 points and 7.7 rebounds and shot 58.9% in the last six regular-season Atlantic 10 Conference contests.

26. Brooklyn Nets:

Maxime Raynaud, Stanford

• Senior, center, 7-0 ¼, 237, 22 • 2024-25 stats: 20.2 ppg, 10.6 rpg,

1.7 apg, 1.4 bpg, 46.7% FG, 34.7% 3PT, 77% FT

Born in Paris, Raynaud spent four seasons at Stanford and was first-team All-ACC his senior season. He can make 3s, rebound, protect the rim - the easy comparison is Oklahoma City's Chet Holmgren. Raynaud works well in the pick-and-roll, runs the floor well, sees the court and can play in the low post.

27. Brooklyn Nets:

Walter Clayton Jr., Florida • Senior, guard, 6-2, 199, 22

• 2024-25 stats: 18.3 ppg, 4.2 apg, 3.7 rpg, 1.2 spg, 44.8% FG, 38.6% 3PT, 85.7%

Named the Most Outstanding Player of the Final Four, Clayton had 34 points in the national semifinals against Auburn and 11 points, seven assists and five rebounds in the championship victory against Houston. He also scored 30 points in a regional final against Texas Tech and was 21-for-42 from the field in the Gators' final three games. Has range on 3-point shots and can shoot off the dribble or pass but needs to improve as a playmaker and defender.

28. Boston Celtics: Hugo Gonzalez, Real Madrid (Spain)

• Guard-forward, 6-7, 207, 19

• 2024-25 stats: 3.2 ppg, 1.7 rpg, 41% FG, 28.1% 3PT, 73.9% FT

One of Europe's top young NBA prospects, Gonzalez is a versatile wing with the ability to score inside and out. He can handle the ball, pass and is a surprising shot-blocker. He's still raw.

29. Phoenix Suns:

Drake Powell, North Carolina • Freshman, guard-forward, 6-5 ¼,

200, 19

• 2024-25 stats: 7.4 ppg, 3.4 rpg, 1.1 apg, 48.3% FG, 37.9% 3PT, 64.8% FT

Active on both ends of the court as a shot-blocker and physical and versatile defender, and as a player who likes to run the court, launch catch-and-shoot 3s and go one-on-one in the half-court. Playing on a deep team, especially on the perimeter, Powell doesn't possess eye-popping offensive stats but his shooting stats reveal his potential. Was an efficient scorer in limited opportunities and can be a solid rebounder from the perimeter.

30. Los Angeles Clippers: Ben Saraf, Ratiopharm Ulm (Ger-

• Guard, 6-6, 200, 19

• 2024-25 stats: 12.2 ppg, 4.3 apg, 2.6 rpg, 1.2 spg, 45.5% FG, 28.6% 3PT, 72.7%

He's just as comfortable knocking down a step-back jumper, finding creases in the paint and dishing the ball with excellent vision. He may need some time to develop as he adjusts to NBA athletes, but his length and size at point guard will make him an intriguing prospect.

Elite NBA exec may have sights a bit higher

One of the best front office executives in the NBA is on the open market. Masai Ujiri and the Toronto Raptors have parted ways. Ujiri had the title of vice chairman and team president and was the Raptors' alternate governor. Not only did he have a significant impact on roster construction that led to Toronto's 2019 championship, he was influential when it came to league matters at large.

If a team is looking for an executive to lead the next phase of operations at a high level with a track record of success, Ujiri is the answer.

However, is that what Ujiri wants to do next with his life? He has opportunities in and out of basketball that don't involve the NBA directly.

I've always thought Ujiri may want to have an impact on society beyond basketball: politics, or another type of public service; expanding his Giants of Africa foundation; other charitable organizations. I wondered if New York or Washington, D.C., might be one of his next stops, even if it wasn't with an NBA team. Being that close to powerful people and organizations makes sense.

Ujiri is smart, thoughtful, savvy in the best ways and is well connected. If Ujiri wanted to text Barack Obama right now, he could.

He has choices, and his next step will be fascinating.

Ujiri's Giants of Africa provides basketball instruction and mentorship of youth in Africa and hosts camps across the continent. He also has a specific camp for big men - 6-foot-8 and taller.

He has official and unofficial roles in helping the NBA's international growth in Canada and Africa. When Ujiri joined the Raptors in 2013, Shai Gilgeous-Alexander was a 14-year-old developing a love of the game in Toronto. Today, Gilgeous-Alexander is a 2025 NBA champion and reigning regular-season and NBA Finals MVP.

Ujiri is not single-handedly responsible for the basketball explosion in Canada, but he understands the landscape. He had an official role with the NBA's Basketball Without Borders and the Basketball Africa League.

Ujiri doesn't have to decide now. He had one year remaining on his contract, and it's known throughout the league that the Raptors and ownership are more than fair with compensation.

Teams will call, and he will be wise to listen. But there may be other, more important endeavors on his agenda.

Both Nuggets, Nets win in trade of Porter Jr., Johnson

Lorenzo Reyes

USA TODAY

Perhaps sensing the shifting balance of power in the NBA Western Conference, the Denver Nuggets swung a deal to keep pace.

Denver is sending forward Michael Porter Jr. and a 2032 unprotected firstround draft pick to Brooklyn for Nets forward Cameron Johnson, a person with direct knowledge of the deal confirmed to USA TODAY Sports. The person spoke under condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to publicly disclose details of the deal prior to an official announcement.

ESPN was first to report the news of

Here are the grades from the trade:

Cameron Johnson

Once seen as a key piece in the deal that sent Kevin Durant from the Nets to the Suns, Johnson had been languishing away on a Nets team that was still not close to competing in earnest. Since being traded to Brooklyn, the Nets won 71 out of 196 games (.362 winning percentage), including a sweep in the first round of the 2022-23 season playoffs.

Now, Johnson goes to a 50-win team that took the eventual champs to seven games in the conference semifinals and one that is two years removed from a title. With Nikola Jokic's superb passing ability, Johnson, 29, should thrive.

He's excellent with the ball in his hands and in pick-and-roll scenarios. Throwing him into the mix with Jokic and point guard Jamal Murray should only lead to a jump in production.

Grade: A

Denver Nuggets

In many ways, this is an interesting trade; both Porter and Johnson have similar skill sets. Both are excellent perimeter shooters and both are decent defenders. Both are signed for two more seasons, through the 2026-27 season. The biggest difference? Johnson is two years older but significantly cheaper.

According to Spotrac.com, Porter carries a cap hit of $79.1 million over the next two seasons. Johnson's cap hit over that span is $44.1 million, or a difference of around $35 million.

This, essentially, gives the Nuggets far more roster flexibility, and they reportedly have started to use it. Per ESPN, Denver brought back Bruce Brown – a plus defender who excelled during the championship season - on a one-year deal. This season, the Nuggets lacked depth. Now, it's a strength.

Grade: A-

Brooklyn Nets

The Nets these days are all about draft picks. They like to stash them.

They like to draft with them. Just days after they made all five of their firstround selections, the Nets are taking on the added salary of Porter because of that 2032 unprotected first.

Porter is a better rebounder than Johnson, hauling in 7.0 boards per game to Johnson's 4.3. He's a slightly more efficient scorer, though Porter tends to fall into streaky play.

This is trickier to grade for Brooklyn, because it depends on what the franchise does with its picks. If the Nets can turn this 2032 pick into part of a trade package that nets a star, then it's a home run. If they hold on to it and it leads to a lottery selection in seven years, it could be a home run. If not? It could prolong the rebuild.

Grade: C+

Michael Porter Jr.

For a player who was part of a championship run and on one of the more consistent teams during his tenure there, Porter is going into a very different environment. The Nets are very clearly rebuilding and their focus right now is on developing their young players. Porter just turned 27 on June 29, so he's also very young. Still, even with the Eastern Conference entirely open, it's hard to see the Nets threatening with their current roster, at least in the short term.

Back-to-back champs keep key core

Mike Brehm

The Florida Panthers have won backto-back Stanley Cup titles and have been to the Final three years in a row.

If that doesn't say start of a dynasty, general manager Bill Zito's recent magic might have positioned the team for another run and more.

Zito had expressed confidence he could sell his three key pending unrestricted free agents on a winning culture and get Sam Bennett, Aaron Ekblad and Brad Marchand re-signed.

Playoff MVP Bennett was first, agreeing to an eight-year, $64 million extension that was announced before the NHL draft. Then the team announced an eight-year deal for top-pairing defenseman and 2014 No. 1 overall pick Ekblad worth a reported $6.1 million a year on June 30. And reports emerged later in the day that Marchand, who scored 10 playoff goals after arriving in a trade, would be getting a six-year deal worth a little more than $5 million a year. His contract will run until he's 43.

NOTICES

Zito vowed that the team would spend to the salary cap and it will. And all three are taking under-market contracts to stick around. Also important, they aren't joining the Panthers' rivals. The Panthers now have Aleksander

NOTICES

Barkov, Matthew Tkachuk, Sam Reinhart, Bennett, Carter Verhaeghe, Marchand, Anton Lundell, Seth Jones, Ekblad and Gustav Forsling signed through at least 2030.

Zito also made a recent trade for goaltender Daniil Tarasov, 26, who will get to learn under veteran Sergei Bobrovsky and possibly be the Panthers' No. 1 goalie of the future.

The Panthers are like a family. That camaraderie is a key selling point. So is winning. And the Panthers have put themselves in position to do more.
