College September report card revealing

Paul Myerberg
USA TODAY

Arch Manning isn't going to win the Heisman Trophy. Clemson isn't going to win the national championship. Penn State still can't figure out how to beat a top-five opponent.

North Carolina and new coach Bill Belichick might not win a game against Power Four competition. No. 8 Indiana isn't going anywhere. No. 10 Georgia's defense has dropped off the map.

Those are just a few of the biggest takeaways from the first month of college football's regular season, which ends with the Big Ten and SEC dominating the US LBM Coaches Poll but no clear favorite for the national championship.

The stage is set for an unpredictable stretch before the College Football Playoff bracket is unveiled in early December. USA TODAY Sports looks back at the opening month of the regular season by crowning the best team, biggest surprise, Heisman favorite and more.

Best team: No. 2 Oregon

No. 4 Ole Miss has three SEC wins and a nonconference victory against Tulane. After beating No. 7 Texas in the season opener, No. 1 Ohio State added a strong road win against Washington last weekend. No. 3 Miami has stormed out of the gate by beating No. 21 Notre Dame, South Florida and Florida. But Oregon had maybe the best single win of the first month with the double-overtime victory at No. 6 Penn State, along with additional Power Four wins against Oklahoma State and Northwestern and a rivalry win against Oregon State. The Ducks look like a powerhouse.

Most improved team: No. 8 Oklahoma

After fumbling through a rocky SEC debut, the Sooners have quickly rebounded thanks to a drastic offensive reboot that included the addition of transfer quarterback John Mateer. While Mateer's hand injury could sideline him for a month, Oklahoma remains a major Playoff contender with conference play about to kick into high gear. A difficult schedule gives them some wiggle room if the Sooners can bag some quality wins.

Surprise team: No. 18 Vanderbilt

After reaching and winning the Birmingham Bowl last season, Vanderbilt

Ole Mississippi coach Lane Kiffin has led the Rebels to a 5-0 start that bodes well for their College Football Playoff credentials. JUSTIN FORD/GETTY has taken another step forward with the program's second 5-0 start in the modern era. The face of this surge has been quarterback Diego Pavia, one of several New Mexico State transfers who have changed the complexion of the program and the Commodores' strongest Heisman Trophy contender in almost a century.

Disappointing team: Clemson

The offense stinks. Again. The defense has just two takeaways in three games against the Power Four. The Tigers have dropped three of four to open the year for the first time since 2004. Seen as one of the top teams in the Football Bowl Subdivision back in August, Clemson isn't even the best Power Four team in South Carolina.

Best conference: Big Ten

With the top two teams in this week's US LBM Coaches Poll and four of the top nine, the Big Ten has delivered on pre-season expectations while the best teams in the SEC have struggled to stay afloat during the early part of the league's meat-grinder regular season. The final two months should provide more clarity of the picture, but it's a nice start for the Big Ten.

Heisman Trophy leader: QB Dante Moore, Oregon

The Heisman odds have changed almost weekly, cycling through a series of favorites – Cade Klubnik, Arch Manning, Mateer, Fernando Mendoza – before Moore took over to end the month after his brilliant performance against the Nittany Lions. The redshirt sophomore completed 29 of 39 throws for 248 yards and three touchdowns in the win, giving him 14 scores against just one interception through five games.

Breakout star: QB Trinidad Chambliss, Ole Miss

The former Ferris State transfer was expected to hold a clipboard for Austin Simmons but was thrust into the lineup after Simmons was injured late in the win against Kentucky. Chambliss has at least 385 yards of total offense in each of his three starts with six combined touchdowns as the Rebels have ascended into the top five.

Best non-quarterback: DL Rueben Bain Jr., Miami

After battling injuries in 2024, Bain has been the most dominant defender in the country since posting six tackles, a half-sack and an interception in Miami's win against the Fighting Irish. Against Florida, the junior had seven tackles, one for loss, and 10 quarterback pressures. So far, he's putting together a year that ranks favorably among the best by a defensive lineman in recent FBS history.

Best coach: Lane Kiffin, Ole Miss

He's pushed all the right buttons for the unbeaten Rebels, who may be one of the safest bets for the Playoff with just two more games against team in this week's US LBM Coaches Poll. Whether they remain on track could depend on where Kiffin lands on the unexpected quarterback controversy between Simmons and Chambliss.

Best first-year coach: Dan Mullen, UNLV

Mullen is the only first-year coach still unbeaten after leading UNLV to wins against Idaho State, Sam Houston State, UCLA and Miami (Ohio). While three of these wins were decided by a possession – and it's not like this is a murderer's row of competition – the former Mississippi State and Florida coach has successfully carried over the foundation set in place by his predecessor, Barry Odom.

Biggest upset: South Florida 18, Florida 16

Eighteen-point underdogs heading into Gainesville, South Florida's win was the biggest upset of September by point spread and one of the most impactful results overall. In addition to spoiling the Gators' season and ushering in the end of Florida coach Billy Napier's tenure, the win is another feather in the cap for the American in the fight with the Mountain West and Sun Belt for Group of Five supremacy.

Best game: Oregon 30, Penn State 24 (Sept. 27)

In terms of talent level, drama and overall meaning, it's hard to top the Ducks' double-overtime win in Happy Valley. Oregon led 17-3 early in the fourth quarter before Drew Allar sparked a pair of touchdown drives to force overtime. After exchanging touchdowns in the first extra frame, Oregon scored to open the second overtime but missed the two-point try. Penn State's ensuing possession ended with an Allar interception, marking the second time in as many games against top-five competition the Nittany Lions have been ruined by a late turnover.

Coach on the hot seat: Billy Napier, Florida

Four major-conference coaches have already been fired in Virginia Tech's Brent Pry, UCLA's Deshaun Foster, Oklahoma State's Mike Gundy and Arkansas' Sam Pittman. Barring an epic recovery against a brutal schedule, Florida will eventually part ways with Napier and end the most unsuccessful coaching tenure in modern program history.

Best transfer: QB Carson Beck, Miami

One year after coach Mario Cristobal hit pay dirt with Washington State transfer Cam Ward, Beck has been the nation's most influential transfer and the main reason for the Hurricanes' unbeaten start. While he struggled amid rough weather conditions in the win against Florida, Beck is completing 73.2% of his attempts with seven touchdowns.

Best freshman: DL Sidney Stewart, Maryland

Stewart is one of several freshmen occupying major roles for the surprisingly unbeaten Terrapins. After missing his senior season in high school due to ineligibility issues, he has posted a sack and at least one tackle for loss in all four games. That gives Stewart an edge over Ohio State running back Bo Jackson, who has run for 297 yards on 8.5 yards per carry, and Cal quarterback Jaron-Keawe Sagapolutele, a big reason for the Golden Bears' 4-1 start.

NHL TEAM RECORD, POINT PROJECTIONS

Expect some close finishes top to bottom

Mike Brehm

USA TODAY

The NHL standings could be a little more bunched this season.

Last season, the No. 1 overall team, the Winnipeg Jets, and the No. 32 San Jose Sharks were separated by 64 points. This new season, USA TODAY predicts that the gap between first and last will be 47 points.

First, the Sharks and other bottom teams should improve. Also, the league is changing the rules on salary retention in trades. That will make it harder for top teams to load up and for bottom teams to have fire sales.

Another factor is the 2026 Winter Olympics. Top teams will send more players to Italy in February for an intense tournament. Bottom teams won't send as many players and will get mid-season rest.

USA TODAY Sports makes its annual attempt at projecting the records for all 32 NHL teams (explanations below) for the 2025-26 season.

Pacific Division

- The Vegas Golden Knights will benefit from landing the best free agent (Mitch Marner) and win the Presidents' Trophy as the top regular-season team.

- The Edmonton Oilers are a threat to get back to the Stanley Cup Final – and win it – because of Connor McDavid and Leon Draisaitl. McDavid's team-friendly extension will make it easier to build around the two stars.

- The Los Angeles Kings captain Anze Kopitar will play his final NHL season. It will include a playoff berth and another first-round meeting with the Oilers.

- The Vancouver Canucks hope to shake off a disappointing season. They will need more from Elias Pettersson and for goalie Thatcher Demko to stay healthy.

- The Calgary Flames missed the playoffs on a tiebreaker. They'll be in the race until near the end.

- The Anaheim Ducks hope to take another big step in their rebuild with the hiring of coach Joel Quenneville. They will continue improving but fall short of the playoffs.

- The Seattle Kraken have a new general manager and coach but will miss the playoffs for the fourth time in their five-year existence.

- The San Jose Sharks should end their two-year streak of finishing last but will be among the bottom teams again.

Central Division

- The Dallas Stars changed coaches after losing in the conference finals for three seasons in a row. Glen Gulutzan will try to get the team over the top.

- Nikolaj Ehlers is gone, but the Winnipeg Jets will be a top team as long as Connor Hellebuyck is in net. He might play less in the regular season with an Olympics to win for Team USA.

- The Colorado Avalanche got captain Gabriel Landeskog back during the

Mitch Marner's arrival will help the Vegas Golden Knights and his absence will hurt the Toronto Maple Leafs. IAN MAULE/GETTY IMAGES playoffs and moved out Charlie Coyle and Miles Wood in the offseason.

- The Minnesota Wild took care of two priorities by getting forward Kirill Kaprizov and goalie Filip Gustavsson signed long-term. Kaprizov got a record deal.

- The Utah Mammoth have a new practice facility, a new name and logo and newcomers J.J. Peterka and Nate Schmidt. Things are looking up in their second season in Utah.

- The St. Louis Blues clinched the final Western Conference berth last season. They'll be in the mix again.

- Nashville Predators coach Andrew Brunette is on the hot seat after last season's free agent spree fizzled.

- The Chicago Blackhawks' rebuild around Connor Bedard will take time. Good thing Gavin McKenna is available to whoever wins the draft lottery.

Atlantic Division

- With the Toronto Maple Leafs missing Marner and Florida Panthers missing Aleksander Barkov, the Atlantic Division title is there to grab for the ultra-talented Tampa Bay Lightning.

- It will be hard to replace Marner and his 102 points, but Maple Leafs captain Auston Matthews is healthy.

- No Barkov for seven to nine months. No Matthew Tkachuk early. But the Panthers are deep and coach Paul Maurice always makes the right moves.

- The Ottawa Senators have a good mix and should be able to extend their playoff streak to two seasons.

- The Montreal Canadiens added Noah Dobson, and Ivan Demidov is a rookie of the year favorite. They will be in the hunt for a playoff spot.

- Buffalo Sabres general manager Kevyn Adams is under pressure to end the team's 14-year playoff drought. He added depth to the defense and in net but traded No. 2 scorer J.J. Peterka.

- The Detroit Red Wings hoped they addressed their goaltending concerns by adding John Gibson.

- Was the Boston Bruins' missed playoff berth a one-off or a trend? Last season's sell-off makes it more difficult to turn things around.

Metropolitan Division

- The Carolina Hurricanes signed free agent Nikolaj Ehlers and re-signed Logan Stankoven long-term. Could this be the year this group gets to the Stanley Cup Final?

- A lot of players had career years in 2024-25. That will be hard to duplicate, but the Washington Capitals remain dangerous.

- The New Jersey Devils' key will be Jack Hughes staying healthy. They made the playoffs by two points after he had season-ending surgery in March.

- The Columbus Blue Jackets jumped from eighth in the division in 2023-24 to fourth last season while honoring the memory of Johnny Gaudreau. They just missed the playoffs but should make it this time.

- A lot of New York Rangers players took a step back as they went from a Presidents' Trophy to a missed playoff berth. Some veterans were moved as a result. New coach Mike Sullivan will need to get the rest back on track.

- New GM Mathieu Darche is putting his imprint on the New York Islanders. It helps that the team won the draft lottery and took defenseman Matthew Schaefer.

- The Philadelphia Flyers brought in franchise legend Rick Tocchet behind the bench. He won coach of the year in his first full season in Vancouver, but this team isn't as talented.

- The Pittsburgh Penguins are in a quandary. They could use a rebuild, but that's not fair to Sidney Crosby and the older core. If they start slowly, secondary veterans could end up moving.
