PGA TOUR

Adam Schenk survives wild winds

Cameron Jourdan

Golfweek | USA TODAY NETWORK

Adam Schenk's creativity was on full display down the stretch.

He hit a layup on the par-5 17th that didn't get but 3 feet off the ground. He flighted wedge shots downwind and powered saucy chip shots back into the breeze when he found himself out of position.

He contorted his body and wrists to manipulate his golf ball all around Port Royal Golf Course in Bermuda, doing anything he could in sustained winds of 30 mph and gusting to 45 on Sunday Nov. 16. With his first PGA Tour victory in the balance, Schenk did anything but shank his ball offline when numerous others crumbled down the stretch.

For the first time in 243 PGA Tour starts, Schenk is a winner, taking the 2025 Butterfield Bermuda Championship with a brilliant stretch of shot making and creativity to survive a wind that bruised and battered most of the 70 players in the field during the final round. Schenk, who entered the final round tied for the lead, had a clutch par save on the par-3 16th and par-4 18th, winning by one shot over Chandler Phillips. Schenk missed a short birdie look on the 17th that would have given him a two-shot cushion going to the 18th, but he missed it and had to grind out a par to win. He finished with 16 pars in all on Sunday.

"I started to play some better golf the last four months," Schenk said. "I always had a little bit of the belief. I've really been working really hard. I have so many people to thank. I wish my family could be here. Of course I win out of the country and my wife can't be here."

On a day that featured numerous bogeys, Schenk's scorecard was relatively quiet. He had only one bogey and one birdie, somewhat boring golf in conditions that were anything but. Yet throughout the afternoon on the wind-swept island in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, Schenk grinded his way to victory, holding the lead throughout the entire back nine and never truly being challenged by anyone because of the conditions.

In the war of attrition, Schenk came out on top.

He has had close calls in the past, losing in a playoff to Emiliano Grillo at the 2023 Charles Schwab Challenge. He had five top-25 finishes this year, but he had also missed 15 cuts in 26 starts coming into the Butterfield Bermuda Championship while sitting 134th in the FedExCup Fall standings.

"I knew I could win, it was just a matter of executing each shot and handling each situation I put myself in," he said. "I can't believe it's over. It seemed like the longest day ever."

Even down the stretch, the nerves showed for Schenk, who stood strong above the rest. His missed birdie putt on the 17th could've broken him. Instead, he smoked his tee shot down the fairway on 18. His approach went long, perhaps a combination of adrenaline, nerves and misjudging the wind, but he pulled putter from long of the green and hit a brilliant lag to about 4 feet.

Then he fist pumped as his par putt trickled over the front edge, and he was finally a PGA Tour winner.

"Was really hoping this day would come at some point in my life. Never really know if it is," he said. "That's what makes the journey so amazing, interesting, and it's a surreal moment when it finally does."

Adam Schenk celebrates after winning the Butterfield Bermuda Championship at Port Royal Golf Course.

MIKE MULHOLLAND/GETTY IMAGES

He was asked further about his emotions.

"A little bit of relief that it's over with, and to finally get it done because it just seems like at some point or another I've been so close so many times," he said. "Eventually you get it done or you don't, and I'm only going to have so many more of these opportunities, especially if I would have lost in a four-, five-man playoff and still end up having to go to Q-School. Like, that was just a massive putt for me to make, a massive putt to have go in. It's somewhat life changing. It's life changing I get two more years on the PGA Tour."

With the win, Schenk takes home $1,080,000 from the $6 million purse. He'll also move to 67th in the FedExCup standings, well inside the top-100

Cink the 4th to win Schwab Cup double

Todd Kelly

Golfweek | USA TODAY NETWORK

PHOENIX – For just the fourth time, the Charles Schwab Cup Championship tournament winner is also the PGA Tour Champions season-long champ.

Stewart Cink outdueled Steven Alker on Sunday Nov. 16 at Phoenix Country Club to win both trophies and join Tom Watson, Tom Lehman and Kevin Sutherland in an exclusive club.

Cink won for the third time this season and fourth overall on the Champions tour with a two-shot victory over Alker.

"Well, it feels really, really good. It's something that's very unusual, too, because normally in golf you make goals and you just cross them off that you didn't make them," he said on the practice green at Phoenix Country Club green moments after winning. "Obviously we want to push ourselves with goals that are lofty, but on the PGA Tour Champions, this is as lofty as it gets. The season-long Charles Schwab Cup race is really the biggest item on the docket. So to have put it out there and to make it my goal and to talk about it often and then to accomplish it, there would have been a chance to maybe like crumble out there. It feels great. I'm just so pleased. I'm proud of putting myself out at risk just as much as I am of accomplishing the goal."

Cink parred the par-5 18th hole after Alker hit his second into the greenside lake and recorded a bogey there. Cink shot a final-round 67.

He started the final round down a shot to Alker, who has won two of the last three season-long Schwab titles.

After Friday's second round, the duo were paired in the final group for Saturday's third round, with Cink saying "it's exciting to be in the group with the guy that you need to hunt down."

The two would get paired again for Sunday's final round, and by the time the duo got the 12th tee box, Cink was up three shots.

"Very uncharacteristically, he gave me that little three-putt there on 12, I think it was after I just made a birdie putt," Cink said. "That's just not something he does very often, but I knew that was going to light a fire in him."

And that it did, as Alker would birdie three of his next four holes to cut the deficit to one with two to go.

They would each par the 17th, bringing it all down to the par-5 closing hole.

Cink said he didn't see Alker's second shot sail into the greenside lake but noted the crowd's reaction kinda told him something went wrong with it.

"I had a pretty nice yardage into the wind there," said Alker. "I wanted to give myself a chance. I tried to hold up a 5-wood and I just overdid it. So I knew I at least needed to make birdie. It was just a nice number. I didn't even think about laying up, it was just go. I just didn't pull the shot off, that's all."

Cink then laid up before hitting his third onto the green.

From there, it was a formality, with Cink tapping in for par to close it out.

Winning in the Phoenix area was special for Cink.

Cink joins Tom Watson (2005), Tom Lehman (2012) and Kevin Sutherland (2017) on the short list of double dipper on the senior circuit.

Linn Grant captures The Annika in LPGA

Beth Ann Nichols

Golfweek | USA TODAY NETWORK

Linn Grant began the day with a one-stroke lead at The Annika driven by Gainbridge at Pelican and made it look effortless on Sunday Nov. 16. The woman who made history when she beat the men by nine strokes at another event hosted by Sorenstam won her second LPGA title by three on a sun-splashed day in Belleair, Florida.

Grant, 26, became the 29th winner on the LPGA this season. An inconsequential short missed putt for par on the 72nd hole led to the first bogey for Grant since her first hole of the day on Friday. The former Arizona State star finished at 19 under, winning for the first time since 2023.

"We were talking about it yesterday how full circle it is," said Grant. "I mean, I've been talking about it in media all week. I've been playing in her events, and it's just so fun to obviously win anything, but to stand here with her tournament."

Major winner Jennifer Kupcho came up short to win a second title this season but still enjoyed a massive payday. An eagle on Friday on the par-5 14th and a birdie on Thursday helped Kupcho clinch the Aon Risk Reward Challenge and the $1 million prize.

"I think I was stressing about it really all like the last three weeks," said Kupcho. "Really stressed about it obviously this week. But to be able to make an eagle, that was insane on Friday and pretty cool. I mean, obviously it wasn't just that one round, one hole, it was the whole year. Yeah, to be able to say I'm a winner of Aon Risk Reward is pretty cool. I've been pretty close the last couple years. To finally get it done is awesome."

Gaby Lopez finished solo third at 15 under while Charley Hull, Auston Kim and Gaby Lopez all took a share of fourth, five shots back.

There were several tournaments within a tournament at this week's Annika as players battled to finish in the top 60 of the CME points race to qualify for the season-ending CME Group Tour Championship with its $11 million purse and $4 million winner's prize.

Others, meanwhile, battled for the chance to keep their cards for 2026.

Former Arkansas standout Brooke Matthews entered the week No. 62 in the CME points race and clinched her first start at the CME with an ace and an eagle in a closing 65. Matthews tied for eighth to move to 59th on the CME points and left Pelican with a two-year lease to a Lamborghini.

Moments after Lucy Li birdied the 18th hole with a fabulous approach to play her way into the CME field, Nataliya Guseva holed out for birdie on the 72nd hole to cement her place with a 63-68 over the weekend. Guseva began the week 64th on the points list and moved up to 57th. Li vaulted up 13 spots to 58th.

Pajaree Anannarukarn finished right on the bubble at 60th.

Players who moved outside the top 60 include Jenny Shin (61st), Wei-Ling Hsu (62nd) and Cassie Porter (64th). Alexa Pano began the week No. 100 and made a clutch par on 18 to finish 97th. Germany's Aline Krauter missed the cut but slid in at No. 100 to keep her card. Thailand's Pornanong Phatlum slid down three places after a missed cut to finish 101st.

Mets, Rangers swap Nimmo and Semien

Steve Gardner
USA TODAY

The New York Mets and Texas Rangers swapped a pair of veteran players on Sunday Nov. 23 as both teams begin their off-season reshuffling.

Semien

In a one-for-one deal, the Mets picked up three-time All-Star second baseman Marcus Semien in exchange for left-handed hitting outfielder Brandon Nimmo. While this trade lacks the intrigue and has fewer long-term implications than last week's Orioles-Angels deal, it might provide an ever-so-slight indication of the direction both teams are headed during the offseason.

Let's take a look at how the deal impacts the teams and hand out grades on how well they improved their overall rosters.

New York Mets trade grade: C+

The addition of Semien, who won his second career Gold Glove in 2025, should help stabilize the revolving door the Mets had last season at second base, where Jeff McNeil, Brett Baty and Luisangel Acuña all saw action. It also allows McNeil to move to the outfield on a regular basis, essentially filling the void created by Nimmo's departure. (Or the team could cut ties completely with McNeil, whom they've been trying to trade.)

However, Semien is 35. After being perhaps baseball's most durable player from 2018 to 2024, he finally succumbed to the injury bug – missing the final six weeks with a foot injury.

Semien is also a two-time Silver Slugger (2021, 2023), but he posted a career-worst .230/.305/.364 slash line in 2025 with 15 homers, 62 RBIs and 11 stolen bases in 127 games. The Mets are hoping his offense bounces back – the move to Citi Field should help – and that his glove helps shore up a significant weakness in the infield.

The Mets still have a major decision to make this offseason regarding free agent slugger Pete Alonso. If Alonso doesn't return, the addition of Semien does give them another right-handed bat in the lineup.

Semien is due $26 million next season and is signed through 2028 (which could impact the team's plans for top infield prospect Jett Williams).

Texas Rangers trade grade: C

Nimmo was the Mets' first-round draft pick in 2011 (13th overall) and has spent 10 seasons patrolling the outfield in Queens. He'll fill a hole in the outfield created when the Rangers declined to offer a contract to veteran Adolis Garcia at the non-tender deadline.

He figures to take over Semien's leadoff spot, with his .364 career on-base percentage giving the Rangers an upgrade in that role. Like Semien, Nimmo has been quite durable – appearing in at least 150 games in each of the past four seasons. He also has a similar power/speed profile, posting career highs of 25 homers and 92 RBIs last season, while also stealing 13 bases.

Josh Smith, who filled in admirably when shortstop Corey Seager was injured last season, will likely fill Semien's starting spot at second base.

Nimmo, who will turn 33 in March, will make $20.5 million this coming season and still has five years remaining on his contract that runs through 2030. Compared to Semien's deal, the Rangers will pay a little less up front but be on the hook for two additional years.

Northwestern goes OT for NCAA title

Heather Burns
USA TODAY

Northwestern won its third national field hockey title in five seasons, 2-1 in double overtime over Princeton on Sunday Nov. 23 at Williams Field at Jack Katz Stadium in Durham, North Carolina.

Junior Ilse Tromp secured the trophy for Northwestern, scoring on a penalty corner in the second overtime. Northwestern had 16 shots, including 10 on goal, compared to eight shots and five on goal from Princeton.

"Ilse Tromp is my personal personal superhero," Northwestern captain Maddie Zimmer said. "It was a total team effort. Once we get to overtime and had more space. We have the fastest players; I knew we would get it done."

The Wildcats avenged their only loss of the season. Northwestern (22-1) fell 3-2 to Princeton in Evanston, Illinois, on Oct. 13. Princeton is 18-4 and had its 14-game winning streak snapped.

Northwestern coach Tracey Fuchs, who dodged a Gatorade bath as she was about to be interviewed after the match, has led the Wildcats to five consecutive national title matches and three victories.

"They have been resilient all year, a

NBA WEEK 5 POWER RANKINGS

Lakers move up as LeBron returns

Lorenzo Reyes
USA TODAY

NBA action is intensifying, as the league is turning quickly to December.

That also means the NBA Cup picture is clarifying, with group stage play concluding Friday Nov. 28. The league, however, is contending with several injuries to star players, forcing players like Bucks forward-center Giannis Antetokounmpo, Magic forward Paolo Banchero, Spurs forward-center Victor Wembanyama and plenty others to miss time.

To that point, it's the teams managing those absences well that are the ones remaining competitive. And no team has weathered the loss of an All-Star better than the Oklahoma City Thunder, the reigning NBA champions.

Here are USA TODAY Sports' NBA power rankings after Week 5 of the 2025-26 regular season (Note: Records and stats through Nov. 23. Parentheses show movement from last week's rankings):

Top 5

1. Oklahoma City Thunder, 17-1 (-)
2. Detroit Pistons, 14-2 (+1)
3. Denver Nuggets, 12-4 (-1)
4. Los Angeles Lakers, 12-4 (+1)
5. Houston Rockets, 10-4 (-1)

The Oklahoma City Thunder have the NBA's fourth-best offensive rating (119.6) and the league's best defensive rating (102.8) and net rating (16.9), and they have done this all without Jalen Williams (wrist). The Pistons just got Jaden Ivey back and have the NBA's top active winning streak, at 12 games. It has become clear the Lakers will need some time to integrate LeBron James, and the Nuggets, who will be without forward Aaron Gordon (hamstring) for at least a month, showed in a loss against the Kings that life may be tough without him.

Lakers forward LeBron James is playing for the first time.

Nos. 6-10

6. Cleveland Cavaliers, 12-6 (+2)
7. Minnesota Timberwolves, 10-6 (+2)
8. San Antonio Spurs, 11-5 (-1)
9. Toronto Raptors, 12-5 (+3)
10. Miami Heat, 11-6 (+7)

Just when the Cavaliers were finally getting healthy, center Jarrett Allen suffered a broken ring finger, but Cleveland has nonetheless won four of its last five games. The Raptors have been the surprise of the season and lead the NBA in assist-to-turnover ratio (2.18). And the Heat have won four consecutive games, relentlessly attack the rim and rank second in points in the paint per game (58.0) and Tyler Herro was reportedly set to make his debut Monday night Nov. 24.

Nos. 11-15

11. Phoenix Suns, 11-6 (+3)
12. Atlanta Hawks, 11-7 (-2)
13. New York Knicks, 9-6 (-7)
14. Orlando Magic, 10-8 (+4)
15. Golden State Warriors, 9-9 (-4)

Phoenix, with its remade roster, has leaned in on aggressive defense and its 10.7 steals per game trails the league-leading Thunder by just 0.1. The Knicks have lost three of their last five games, and their defense is a far cry from what it was under previous coach Tom Thibodeau. The Warriors have lost three consecutive games, and the locker room feels like it's already fraying.

Nos. 16-20

16. Boston Celtics, 9-8 (-)
17. Philadelphia 76ers, 9-7 (-2)
18. Milwaukee Bucks, 8-9 (-5)
19. Chicago Bulls, 9-7 (+1)
20. Portland Trail Blazers, 7-10 (-1)

The Celtics are far too inconsistent and a loss against the Nets mars some of the good; no team commits fewer turnovers than Boston's 11.3 per game. Losers of four in a row, the Bucks are flailing without Giannis Antetokounmpo and are averaging just 107.8 points over that span. And the Trail Blazers, after starting the season hot despite the drama surrounding suspended coach Chauncey Billups, have lost eight of the last 11.

Nos. 21-25

21. Memphis Grizzlies, 6-11 (+2)
22. Los Angeles Clippers, 5-12 (-)
23. Dallas Mavericks, 5-13 (+1)
24. Utah Jazz, 5-10 (-1)
25. Charlotte Hornets, 4-13 (-)

The lone Clippers wins in nearly three weeks have come against the Hornets and Mavericks, a pair of teams below Los Angeles on this list. Dallas is still being patient with Anthony Davis, and the Hornets have lost nine of 10.

Nos. 26-30

26. Sacramento Kings, 4-13 (-)
27. Brooklyn Nets, 3-13 (-)
28. Indiana Pacers, 2-14 (+1)
29. New Orleans Pelicans, 2-15 (-1)
30. Washington Wizards, 1-15 (-)

The Kings are a weird team; they are awkwardly constructed and will beat the Nuggets – as they did Sunday – and then lose to the Grizzlies by 41. The Nets have shown more competitive spirit and center Nic Claxton recorded his first career triple-double in a win against the Celtics. The Wizards, meanwhile, have the NBA's worst net rating (-15.5) and have lost 14 games in a row.
